Privacy policy

Effective October 8, 2026

Summary: the Rebobi app records the audio around you only on your phone: it has no internet access, collects no data and shares nothing. Only if you choose to sign up for updates on our website do we keep the name, email and phone you provide (section 8).

1. What the app does

Rebobi uses your phone's microphone to continuously keep the last few minutes of sound around you (from 30 seconds to 10 minutes, your choice), so you can listen again to something you just missed. Recording only starts when you tap "Start remembering" and is shown by a persistent notification while active.

2. Data handled and where it stays

- Ambient audio: recorded and stored only in the app's private storage on your device. Audio older than the chosen window is deleted automatically.
- Preferences: retention window and app settings, stored only on the device.
- Operation log: times when recording started, paused or was interrupted, used to show periods without audio. It contains no audio and no conversation content. The test (alpha) version also keeps a detailed technical log, likewise without content, stored only on the device.

None of this data is sent to us or to third parties. The app has no internet permission and uses no analytics, ads or tracking.

3. Backup and uninstalling

Rebobi's data is excluded from Android automatic backup and device-to-device transfer. Uninstalling the app deletes all audio and preferences.

4. When data leaves the app

Only by your action: when you export a clip, an audio file is saved to your phone's Downloads folder; from then on it is under your control and other apps with file access can open it. In the test version you can also share the technical log manually, for example with the people testing the app. None of this happens automatically.

5. Other people

Rebobi captures the sound around you, which may include other people's voices. Use it respectfully, tell people when it makes sense and follow your country's recording laws. You are responsible for how recordings and exported files are used.

6. Your controls

- Pause recording at any time from the notification.
- Choose how long audio is kept.
- Delete all retained audio in the app settings.
- Revoke the microphone permission in Android settings.

7. Children

Rebobi is not directed to children and should not be used by anyone under 18.

8. Updates form (rebobi.app website)

This section only applies to people who sign up at rebobi.app/news or the form on the home page. The app itself still collects no data.

- Data: name, email, phone, the channels you authorized (email, SMS and/or WhatsApp), date and time, language, source page or campaign and the version of the consent text shown. To prevent abuse we keep, for up to 24 hours, only an anonymous hash of the network address, never the address itself.
- Purpose: sending Rebobi updates through the channels you chose and measuring which channel works best.
- Legal basis: your consent, given separately for each channel.
- Storage: in a Cloudflare database; Cloudflare operates the website infrastructure. We don’t sell or share your data with other companies. If we later use a messaging tool, it will receive only what is needed to reach you through the channels you authorized.
- Retention: while your consent is active. When you unsubscribe we stop contacting you; the record of your consent and unsubscription is kept to prove what you authorized.
- Your rights: unsubscribe at any time at rebobi.app/unsubscribe, and request access, correction or deletion of your data at the email below.

9. Changes and contact

If this policy changes, the new version will be published on this page with an updated effective date. Questions: contato@rebobi.app.
